

Elisete – The sun will always shine

"The sun will always shine," says Elisete, and this is a wonderful promise that also comes true. Elisete named her previous album 'Quiet' (Sheket) because that was right for her then and was what she wanted to give her listeners. She hopes you enjoyed it and that you are ready to a change of atmosphere because after the quiet comes rhythm and also volume - not noise, heaven forbid, only good energy and joy straight from the heart. It is an optimistic song about light and faith and sun and joy. Everything we need so much.

In fact Elisete releases two remixes for the song 'The sun will always shine' (Tamid ha shemesh tizrach), which was first released on her second album 'Gaagua' (Longing), and they are the first songs of the new remix album she will release soon.

Elisete feels that all of us - in the world, but mainly here in Israel - need an urgent injection of positive energy. So many things require urgent fixing around us and to overcome all the obstacles and shake off everything that is oppressing, unjust, annoying and depressing and to embark on a new and universal loving way a person needs a few things: conscience to serve as a compass, integrity, hope, good friends, faith in the way and good music to help everything happen with joy.

Elisete invites you to believe that the sun will always shine and that everything you do has hope and that we will all get to the light and see a blessing in our labor.

The new remix versions of the song 'The sun will always shine' and the accompanying videos are Elisete's collaboration with several talented artists: One remix version was created by Raz Burg and the other by Kobi Shaltiel. The clips were filmed by Elisete and edited by Roby Laville from Italy with whom Elisete had previously broadcast a program in Italian.

Elisete is a versatile and productive creator and works vigorously to explain Israel to the world with her charm and the seven languages she speaks. She lectures, is interviewed and performs in Israel and abroad, she is active in Social media both in music and also promoting the desire for peace. She has an Internet blog – 'Elisete in the Morning' and she hosts a radio show on The First Social Radio in Israel.

The remixes for the song 'The sun will always shine' are the beginning of a second remix album that joins the previous remix album (Elisete – Remixes) and her five acoustic albums. The albums are distributed in Israel and around the world.
